

A-consult offers professional Regulatory Affairs services. Regulations within foods are complicated and demand considerable resources.

A-consult's food department is specialised in advising about food legislation and its practical use in Scandinavia as well as the rest of EU.

Our food department employs engineers in Food and Dairy Science and Technology. All employees continuously undergo further education to offer our clients professional up to date advice and to provide the best service possible.

Tough demands from the authorities are put upon food companies. It is very difficult for the companies to find the right balance between using resources on their core expertises and on regulatory affairs. This is where A-consult can help with our extensive regulatory competences.

A-consult has experience with outsourcing of assignments. We offer a wide range of services and support your internal regulatory affairs capacity.

More and more companies use A-consult as a sparring partner in e.g. the strategic planning of new products, the update of products, the changes in formulas in connection with launching products on new markets, or to ensure compliance with new legislation. We offer surveillance of new legislations to our customers. Further, we offer assistance on self assessment programs on food safety issues and we undertake negotiations with the authorities.

A-consult offers:

- Strategic advice on compositions and classifications of products for the Scandinavian and European markets.
- Notifications, registrations, and applications to authorities – preparations, submission, and follow-up.
- Food labelling - preparation, evaluation, translation, and update.
- Claims according to regulation (EC) 1924/2006 art. 13 and 14 – compliance, documentation, and submission.
- Marketing material – compliance, translation, and update.
